RELEASE TIMELINE

Feb 22nd-May 16TH

After a summer of curating and making bliss in Mannheim at her pop-up gallery the Zeitgenießische Gallery, Anna Baer submerses back into her studio practice, concocting her new body of work. A dozen large paintings on raw canvas,

Built Close to the Water, is a search for home in and around the artist. Anna Baer having grown up on two continents and migrated to a third, is searching to find home through nature in her and around her as her muse.

At times using pallets from flower bouquets, grinding down stones from forest walks to make pigment, and the water on the canvas and the water in her pulled and pushed, like the tides by the moon.

The artwork is an abstract composition on a textured, light beige raw cotton fabric. It features a central, irregular shape in shades of purple and brown, with a darker, almost black, textured area within it. The background is a mix of light beige and yellowish tones, with some darker, brownish spots and a white, irregular shape at the bottom. The overall effect is one of organic, layered textures and colors.
